EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Kevin F. Jura is an interdisciplinary public health scholar, educator, and emergency medical services (EMS) leader with more than twenty-five years of professional experience spanning EMS, public health emergency preparedness, emergency management, disaster response, homeland security, and government. His scholarship examines how governance, organizational leadership, clinical systems, and public policy influence the effectiveness, resilience, integration, and equity of EMS and public health preparedness systems. By integrating rigorous academic inquiry with extensive operational and governmental experience, his work emphasizes evidence-informed policy, systems improvement, and translating research into practice.

Jura is a Doctor of Public Health (DrPH) candidate at Tulane University School of Public Health and Tropical Medicine, concentrating in Leadership, Advocacy, and Equity, with degree completion expected in May 2027. His doctoral work focuses on the intersection of public health, public safety—particularly EMS—and emergency and disaster preparedness, with particular attention to governance structures, organizational performance, workforce development, operational equity, and systems integration. He is concurrently completing a Master of Professional Studies in Homeland Security at Tulane University and previously earned a Master of Professional Studies in Emergency Management, together with graduate certificates in Advanced Emergency Management and Security Management.

He holds a Master of Liberal Arts in International Relations from Harvard University, where his graduate studies emphasized international security and nuclear deterrence, and earned the Public Leadership Credential from the Harvard Kennedy School. He also holds a Master in International Affairs from the Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies (IHEID) in Geneva, Switzerland, with concentrations in Global Health and Global Security. He earned his Bachelor of Liberal Arts in Government, cum laude, from Harvard University.

Jura's research agenda encompasses EMS systems and workforce reform, public health emergency preparedness, medical countermeasures policy, responder health and well-being, health disparities, and the governance of complex emergency and health systems. His applied scholarship involves collaboration with academic institutions, government agencies, professional associations, and other public-sector partners, and emphasizes developing and evaluating policies, programs, clinical systems, and governance structures to improve system performance and population health outcomes. He has shared his work through peer-reviewed publications, scholarly and professional conferences, invited lectures, and research presentations.

As an educator, Jura brings a systems-based, practice-informed approach to teaching undergraduates and graduate students. He serves as an Instructor at Tulane University School of Public Health and Tropical Medicine and as an Adjunct Professor in Disaster and Emergency Management at Columbia College in South Carolina. His teaching interests include public health emergency preparedness, disaster policy and law, EMS systems, health equity, homeland security, emergency management, and crisis leadership. His pedagogy emphasizes experiential learning, case-based analysis, interdisciplinary problem-solving, and integrating empirical evidence with real-world policy, operational, and organizational decision-making.

Jura's academic work is complemented by extensive leadership and public service within EMS, emergency management, and public health. He serves as Vice Chair of the Louisiana Emergency Medical Services Task Force, where he contributes to statewide EMS governance, policy development, and system modernization. He also serves as President of the Louisiana Chapter of the National Association of EMS Physicians® (NAEMSP®) and holds additional elected and appointed leadership positions within state and national professional organizations. He is Vice President of the National Association of Veterinary Emergency Medical Services (NAVEMS) and has contributed to initiatives that address EMS education, professional standards, federal policy, medical countermeasures, and the integration of specialized capabilities into emergency response systems.

Jura is a Nationally Registered Paramedic and Certified Emergency Manager® (CEM®), an elected Fellow of the Royal Society for Public Health (FRSPH), and an elected Lifetime Fellow of the Royal Society of Arts (FRSA). He contributes to the scholarly community through editorial and peer-review service for medical and public health journals, including service as a non-physician editor for JACEP Open and the Journal of Special Operations Medicine. Across his scholarship, teaching, professional leadership, and public service, his work reflects a sustained commitment to interdisciplinary inquiry, evidence-informed policy, equity-centered systems improvement, and advancing EMS as an integral component of public health and health care systems.

ONGOING RESEARCH PROJECTS AND ROLES

Primary Investigator (PI)

Project Title:	Strategic Review and Update of BARDA-Approved Autoinjectors in the Strategic National Stockpile (SNS) and for Prehospital Use
Role:	Primary Investigator and Corresponding Author
Affiliated Institutions:	National Association of EMS Physicians® (NAEMSP®) and US Department of Health and Human Services, Administration for Strategic Preparedness and Response, Biomedical Advanced Research and Development Authority (HHS/ASPR/BARDA)
IRB Protocol:	Exempt
Dates:	March 2025 to Present
Description:	This project evaluates the clinical relevance, operational suitability, and current medical guidance supporting the use of BARDA-approved autoinjectors stockpiled in the Strategic National Stockpile (SNS) for chemical, biological, radiological, and nuclear (CBRN) emergencies and prehospital use. As Principal Investigator and Corresponding Author, I am leading a national, multidisciplinary workgroup under the National Association of EMS Physicians® (NAEMSP®) to assess evolving field-use conditions, emerging threats, and pharmaceutical advancements. The goal is to provide evidence-informed recommendations to federal partners on necessary updates, substitutions, or augmentations to existing auto-injector assets to enhance readiness and responder safety in mass-casualty or tactical operations.

Sub-Primary Investigator (Sub-PI)

Project Title:	Establishing a Baseline Report Card of Louisiana's Emergency Medical Services (EMS) Systems and Recommendations for Improving the State's EMS Governance
Role:	Sub-Primary Investigator and Corresponding Author
Affiliated Institutions:	LSUHSC Shreveport and Louisiana Department of Health, Bureau of Emergency Medical Services (LDH/BEMS)
IRB Protocol:	LSUHS IRB # TBD
Dates:	May 2025 to Present
Description:	This Cooperative Endeavor Agreement (CEA) establishes a statewide research and policy initiative to evaluate the current status of Louisiana's Emergency Medical Services (EMS) System and develop legislative solutions to strengthen system performance, regulatory alignment, physician oversight, and the state's overall EMS governance system. As the Primary Co-Investigator, chief negotiator of the CEA, and Corresponding Author, I serve as the principal liaison between LDH/BEMS, LSU Health Shreveport, and the NAEMSP® Louisiana State Chapter. The project includes a comprehensive analysis of EMS provider protocols statewide, benchmarking them against both the National EMS Scope of Practice and the Louisiana Scope of Practice to identify variations, systemic gaps, and opportunities for system improvement. The work further includes maintaining confidentiality of agency-level assessment results and producing a statewide EMS Report Card to guide policy modernization and improve the state's EMS governance. A core component of the project is developing draft legislation to ensure that the NAEMSP® Louisiana State Chapter—representing Louisiana EMS Medical Directors and Board-Certified EMS Physicians—has a permanent seat on all current and future EMS-related commissions, task forces, regional councils, and other governmental advisory bodies. Additional legislation will be drafted to support statewide implementation of the EMS Report Card's recommendations.

Co-Investigator (Co-I)

Project Title:	Demographic Disparities in Prehospital Documentation of Vital Signs and Advanced Monitoring
Role:	Co-Investigator
Affiliated Institutions:	LSUHSC Shreveport and NAEMSP® Louisiana Chapter
IRB Protocol:	LSUHS IRB # Pending
Dates:	March 2025 to Present
Description:	This study explores whether disparities exist in the documentation of standard and advanced vital signs (e.g., $ETCO_2$) by EMS providers across different demographic groups. Specifically, it examines whether factors such as age (e.g., pediatric or geriatric patients), race/ethnicity, and other indicators of marginalization impact the frequency and completeness of recorded vital signs during prehospital encounters. The project aims to identify patterns that may reflect implicit bias, systemic inequities, or protocol inconsistencies to inform targeted education, quality-improvement initiatives, and equitable EMS care practices.

Project Title:	Evaluating the Stability and Duration of Efficacy of Intranasal Naloxone (Narcan®) Stored in Vehicle Environments
Role:	Co-Investigator
Affiliated Institutions:	LSUHSC Shreveport and NAEMSP® Louisiana Chapter
IRB Protocol:	LSUHS IRB # Pending
Dates:	March 2025 to Present
Description:	This study investigates how exposure to vehicle-based environmental conditions, such as temperature fluctuations and prolonged heat, affects the chemical stability and clinical efficacy of intranasal naloxone (Narcan®). The primary objective is to determine how long Narcan retains its potency when stored in personal and emergency vehicles under real-world conditions. Findings from this study aim to inform evidence-based recommendations for storage practices and restocking intervals to ensure the continued effectiveness of naloxone as a life-saving opioid overdose intervention.

Project Title:	Prehospital Management of Total Gastric Dissociation (TGD): A Review of EMS Protocol Inclusion and Clinical Guidance
Role:	Co-Investigator
Affiliated Institutions:	LSUHSC Shreveport and NAEMSP® Louisiana Chapter
IRB Protocol:	LSUHS IRB # Pending
Dates:	March 2025 to Present
Description:	This study examines the extent to which Total Gastric Dissociation (TGD)—a rare but surgically complex gastrointestinal condition—is addressed within existing EMS clinical guidelines and protocols. The research aims to identify gaps in prehospital awareness, protocol standardization, and best practice recommendations for the assessment and transport of patients with a history of TGD. By analyzing statewide and national EMS protocols, the study seeks to inform future guideline development and educational efforts for EMS clinicians managing patients with altered gastrointestinal anatomy.

COMPLETED RESEARCH PROJECTS AND ROLES

Sub-Primary Investigator (Sub-PI)

Project Title:	Overcoming Mental Health Stigma in EMS and Disaster Medicine
Role:	Sub-Primary Investigator and Corresponding Author
Affiliated Institutions:	LSUHSC Shreveport and NAEMSP® Louisiana Chapter
IRB Protocol:	LSUHS IRB # STUDY00003039
Dates:	May 2025 to Present
Description:	The purpose of this study is to investigate the nature and drivers of mental health stigma in EMS and disaster medicine, and to identify systemic, cultural, and organizational leadership factors that either perpetuate or mitigate this stigma. The study also aims to document successful case examples of stigma reduction, termed "positive deviance," to inform future reforms.

Specific aims include:

- To examine how stigma affects help-seeking behavior among EMS and disaster medicine professionals.
- To assess how organizational culture and leadership influence mental health perceptions and utilization of mental wellness resources.
- To identify and analyze EMS agencies or leaders that serve as positive deviants—those who have overcome stigma to support employee wellbeing.
- To develop actionable recommendations, including deliverables such as a statewide EMS Report Card and draft legislation, to institutionalize structural change in Louisiana's EMS governance framework.

Co-Investigator (Co-I)

Project Title:	National Disaster Medical System (NDMS) Pilot Program: Large Scale Combat Operations (LSCO)
Role:	Co-Investigator and Sub-Committee Chair
Affiliated Institutions:	LSUHSC Shreveport and US Department of Health and Human Services, Administration for Strategic Preparedness and Response, National Disaster Medical System (HHS/ASPR/NDMS)
IRB Protocol:	HHS/ASPR/NDMS
Dates:	October 2025 to Present
Description:	This study is to evaluate the feasibility and implications of accelerated healthcare training across the U.S. civilian system—including EMS, nursing, allied health, and medicine—to prepare for a large-scale combat operation (LSCO) or other national mass-casualty event. The project is part of the National Disaster Medical System (NDMS) Pilot

Program, which aims to strengthen national medical surge capacity and resilience by leveraging both military and civilian healthcare infrastructure.

MENTORSHIP AND ADVISING

Specific names and identifying details of individual mentees and institutions are intentionally omitted to preserve privacy and to comply with professional confidentiality obligations.

Undergraduate Students

I provide academic and professional mentorship to undergraduate students, including those pursuing pre-medical, pre-law, public health, emergency management, homeland security, and related interdisciplinary pathways. This work includes guiding students as they consider and prepare applications to graduate and professional programs in medicine, law, public health, and allied fields. I support students with academic and career planning, developing foundational research and analytical skills, and preparing application materials. When appropriate, I write letters of recommendation and make professional introductions to faculty members and mentors who may help in a student's next stage of training.

Former mentees have successfully matriculated into graduate and professional programs consistent with their goals.

Graduate Students (Master's Level)

I mentor master's-level graduate students in public health, emergency management, homeland security, and related disciplines. This mentorship typically involves advising on applied research projects, capstone work, methodological approaches, and scholarly writing. I also guide students as they consider professional pathways across academia, government, healthcare, and emergency management, with an emphasis on leadership development and the practical application of training.

Students I have worked with have progressed into relevant professional and advanced academic roles.

Professional Mentorship

Emergency Management

I provide professional mentorship to emergency management practitioners and leaders across preparedness, response, recovery, and mitigation domains. This mentorship emphasizes governance, interagency coordination, continuity planning, and resilience-building within complex institutional environments. I support colleagues as they assume broader leadership responsibilities and integrate public health and EMS perspectives into emergency management practice.

Mentees have advanced into senior programmatic and leadership roles.

Emergency Medical Services (EMS)

I provide professional mentorship to EMS clinicians and EMS system leaders across local, state, and national contexts. This mentorship commonly addresses clinical systems integration, medical direction, protocol development, quality improvement, and governance. I support colleagues as they navigate leadership responsibilities and consider ways to translate operational experience into evidence-informed practice and policy engagement.

Several mentees have advanced into senior clinical, operational, or leadership positions.

Public Health

I mentor public health practitioners working in preparedness, response, recovery, policy, and health systems strengthening. This work emphasizes population health frameworks, interagency coordination, equity-conscious practice, and integration of emergency management and EMS within broader public health systems. Mentoring often focuses on professional development, program design, and research engagement.

Mentees have progressed within governmental, nonprofit, and academic public health settings.

Research and Publication Mentorship (New and First-Time Authors)

I mentor new and first-time authors, particularly operational clinicians and applied professionals, through the research and scholarly publication process. This includes guidance on study framing, ethical considerations, manuscript development, and navigating peer review. Mentorship supports clear communication of practice-based experience and enables responsible contributions to the scholarly literature.
