Employer Research Guide

The Employer Research Guide includes numerous employers, professional organizations, and additional database resources to begin exploring careers or navigating the job search. While this list is comprehensive, it is not all inclusive. Jobs and internships can be found at any public health organization!

When should I start my job search?

While there is no one size fits all timeline, students should use the general timeline below to guide their search.

Undergraduate Timeline

Freshman Year

- Access Handshake.
- Familiarize yourself with Tulane Career Center and SPHTM Career Studio.
- Schedule a Career appointment.
- Join a Public Health student organization (USG, Public Health Society)
- Job shadow over winter or summer break.

Sophomore Year

- Declare your major.
- Update your resume.
- Read all of the SPHTM Career guides!
- Research some employers and national public health organizations.
- Identify internship opportunities.
- Schedule informational interviews with public health professionals or recent alumni who are doing things that interest you.

Junior Year

- Join a professional organization.
- Attend all Tulane and SPHTM Career fairs/events.
- Update your resume.
- Identify some locations you would be interested in post graduation.
- Mock interview with your Career Advisor.
- Have meaningful conversations your network and key employers.

Senior Year

- Complete final resume and cover letter reviews.
- Set a timeline for your search. Put yourself on a job search schedule.
- Continue networking via LinkedIn and Career sponsored events.
- Apply via Handshake and Employment Career Sites.
- Stay organized and track your postings and contacts.
- Graduate and enter the workforce or continue your education!

Master's Timeline

How should I start my job search?

The job hunt takes time. Don't procrastinate!

Be prepared when it's time to apply!

At SPHTM Career Services, we have found that finding and securing a job comes from a combination of three distinct efforts: Networking, Researching employers and opportunities, and Applying to online job postings. Finding the right sweet spot between all of these efforts will lead you to your next opportunity.

The Career Services Venn Diagram

Networking Quick Tips

Expand your current network by:

- Joining professional organizations and attending sponsored conferences.
- Asking for references from your current network.
- Utilizing LinkedIn to locate alumni or employees at ideal companies.
- Using Tulane Connect to find alumni in your line of work.
- Checking out our SPHTM Networking Guide in Handshake Resources.

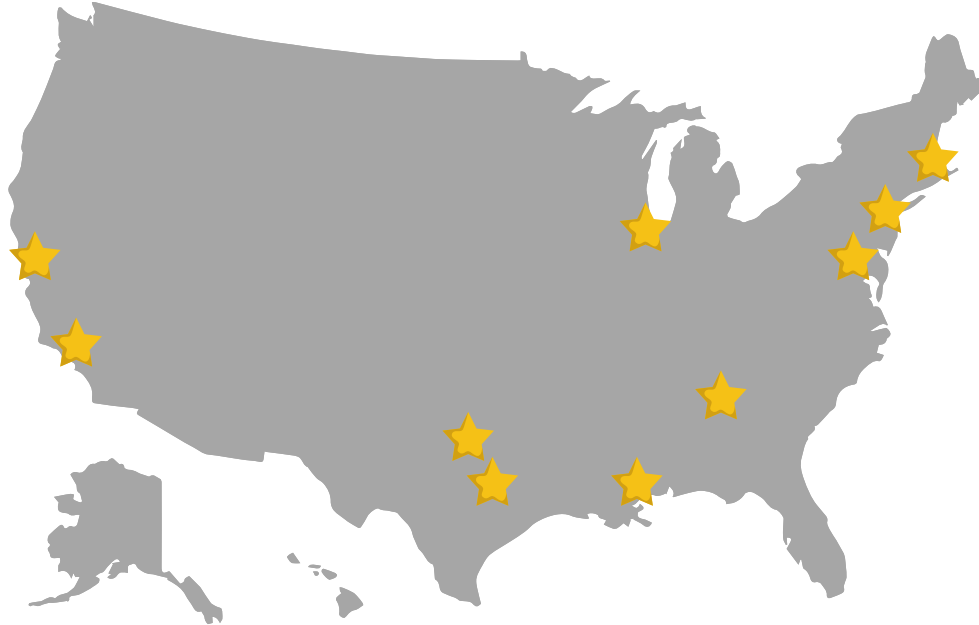

Research Quick Tips

- While being too picky with companies can leave you missing out, not being picky enough in your search can also be harmful.
- Use the SPHTM Employer Research Guide.
- Use SPHTM Graduate Outcomes Reports: <https://sph.tulane.edu/graduate-outcomes-reports>
- Be sure to research organization mission, leadership, and average salaries (features available on Glassdoor and LinkedIn).
- Focus your research by city, public health issue of interest, or industry.
- Keep a spreadsheet of places you are interested in and save employment sites on your bookmarks.

Postings Quick Tips

- Some organizations may use resources like Indeed or Monster, but always check the organization's employment site for the most accurate information. Use public health job boards like APHA Career Mart, CSTE Career Center, or Emory Public Health Connection.
- Check "Required" vs. "Preferred" qualifications. If you feel close to qualified but not quite there, apply anyway!
- Apply for postings no earlier than 4 months before graduation (Health consulting is the main exception to this rule).
- Keep a detailed spreadsheet of positions you have applied to, job descriptions, deadlines, and follow up details.
